SEVERAL BILLS NEED WATCHING

A. E. MATHESON HAS PREPARED A LIST OF MOST IMPORTANT ONES PRESENTED.

BRIEF RESUME IS GIVEN

Part of the Report Read Before the Twilight Club On Tuesday Evening Is Printed Below.

That there are many bills before the state legislature that need careful attention is most certain. Business and professional men throughout the state are much disturbed over the number of radical, almost socialist measures that have been introduced in the present legislature. At the regular Monday meeting of the Commercial and Industrial Club it was suggested that a resume of some of these bills be presented to the consideration of the Twilight Club and A. E. Matheson, secretary of the association, did so. The list as Mr. Matheson says is not complete and lack of time did not permit going into details but the following is the portion of Mr. Matheson's address that deserves the careful attention and consideration of every citizen and with this in view is printed today.

Mr. Matheson said by way of introduction: "In presenting what I have in the way of synopsis I make no attempt to discuss the merits of the measures and shall not intentionally inject into what I present my own personal view as to the measures. I trust if there is time that there will follow a discussion as to the measures, for some of them are of vital consequence to us and to all the citizens of Wisconsin. It must be said that some of them are of a radical nature whether wisely or unwisely so it is not for me to say. If the people of Wisconsin want radical legislation there is some of it pending in the legislature now. If they do not want it at present and feel that it may be too long a step just now, or that such a step should never be taken, it is for them to take honorable methods to convince their representatives at Madison that it is not wise."

"In passing, reference should be made to the Anti-Lobby law. This law provides that where a person appears before the legislature or a committee with reference to legislation affecting the pecuniary interests of an individual association or corporation is distinct from the interests of all the people, he must register as provided by law. I think it is fair to say that where one goes before legislative committee in his own interest and not in support of or opposition to a bill within the provisions of the law for the regulation of lobbying. This law further provides that no one employed or a pecuniary compensation to act as legislative counsel shall attempt to influence any member of the legislature otherwise than appearance before the committee thereof. A strict construction of this law would prevent a counsel or agent from conferring with a member of the legislature in his own home or his office or elsewhere where he might meet him. This, of course, is a forced construction of the law. Where efforts are made by newspaper publication, public address, or in any statements or arguments delivered to members of the legislature, there must be deposited with the Secretary of State before such delivery twenty-five copies of such statements or arguments.

Income Tax Bill.

"A tax on profits and income of citizens of Wisconsin and residents within the state, also upon non-residents doing business here. It applies to corporations, partnerships and associations. Covers profits on real estate purchased within three years; property acquired by gift or inheritance; and in a general way, all gains, profits and incomes from every source. The law provides for the deduction of expenses and losses. The exemptions are: single person $500.00; husband and wife, $800.00; for each additional child under eighteen, $200.00 and for each dependent other than wife or child, $200.00; no exemptions are allowed to corporations, partners or associations. One who holds a small amount of stock in a corporation, even though his income from such stock is far below the minimum exemption, he, as a stockholder, is nevertheless paying a proportion of the tax assessed against the corporation. The rate varies from 1 per cent on the first thousand of taxable income (that is, the amount above the exemption) to 5 1/2 per cent on the twelfth thousand and 6 per cent on all exceeding twelve thousand. In a general way it may be said that so-called credits are exempt from the personal tax. Personal ornaments, jewelry, household furniture and certain other kinds of personal property are to be exempt from the present personal property tax. An assessor of income is to be appointed by the state tax commission for each county. This assessor may appoint deputies. The salaries and expenses of this assessor and his deputies shall not exceed a tax of one-tenth of a mill on each dollar of assessed valuation in the county. The amount would be in the neighborhood of $6,000.00 in Rock County. In a county like Milwaukee, of course it would be a great deal more, but where the work would be very much increased and the expense greater. Provisions are made for a Board of Review. Personal property that is to be assessed annually and real estate to be assessed once in four years—the revenue derived from the income tax is to be divided, 2 1/2 per cent to the state, 12 1/2 per cent to the county and 8 1/2 per cent to the town, village or city.

State Highway Commission.
Bill No. 7 S (Burke) provides for the creation of a state highway commission consisting of three commissioners. Such commission is to have general supervision over the highways of the state and to cooperate with other public agencies for the improvement thereof. County Boards are authorized to levy a tax not exceeding two mills for the improvement of highways in the county. The bill provides for the general appropriation of $200,000 per annum for a period of six years, a total of $1,200,000, in addition to the two mill tax that may be levied by county authority.

COMMUNICATION.

Edgerton, Wis. Feb. 14.

To Editor Gazette.
I would like room to reply to the article in yesterday's paper about carp fishing. It must have been a carp fisher talking as no one else sees it that way, that Nivosa near Lake Koshkonong. He says they put back game fish. Any person would think by the amount of dead fish that they left that they did not. If they did put some back they must have had terrible hauls of game fish. I can positively prove that they killed so many last fall, that they payed men $2.00 a day to bury them. As for game wardens overseeing the work. Some of them are so crooked, we wonder if they have to sleep in a round house. We have one game warden in this district that we believe to be a good honest one, and if he was overseeing this carp fishing business it would be done in a more honest way. All fishers know, that pickerel go to the marshes to mate, not to spawn. They usually spawn in deep water. He says there are no pickerel anywhere now. I can take a common sense man now and catch thousands of them. If you want to find some of your pickerel anywhere go to dog fish. I caught one last summer, that had 47 small minnows in him and the Lord knows how many more he would eat before the day was out.

Now in drawing the nets for carp it seems to me the game fish should be taken out first and not last, as they may do. Two or three years ago they made a haul in Goldthorn's bay, and it was a sight to see the pile and bass in the net. We all know that carp weighing from 20 to 30 lbs. flopping around in the net would kill the game fish. They can't make me believe that they do not kill game fish when I know it to be the truth. I believe in carp fishing but there should be a law making them take out the game fish first. All game fish have feeding beds, and at times the carp get on their feeding beds and drive them out. I am a man that has lived 36 years at this lake and think I know what I am talking about. Those carp fishers have made a good thing, and as near as I can see, they don't care how many game fish they kill. It seems too bad that a farmer can't go out and get a piece of fish, without a game warden right after him and then allow the carp fishers to kill them the way they did.

Yours for the public good.

ALBANY.

Albany, Feb. 15.—The McIntire farm was sold Saturday to John Rhymer at $90.25 an acre. The Gilbert place which was put up at auction was not sold. The Wm. Larner place was sold to August Krause for $70.25 an acre.

M. M. McPherson of Pacific Grove, Cal., came last week on business connected with the McIntire estate. He is a son-in-law of Christopher McIntire. J. H. Carver of Marshall, Minn., is visiting his mother and brother here. Our university students are home for a week's vacation, it being the end of the first semester.

They Don't Like Funerals.

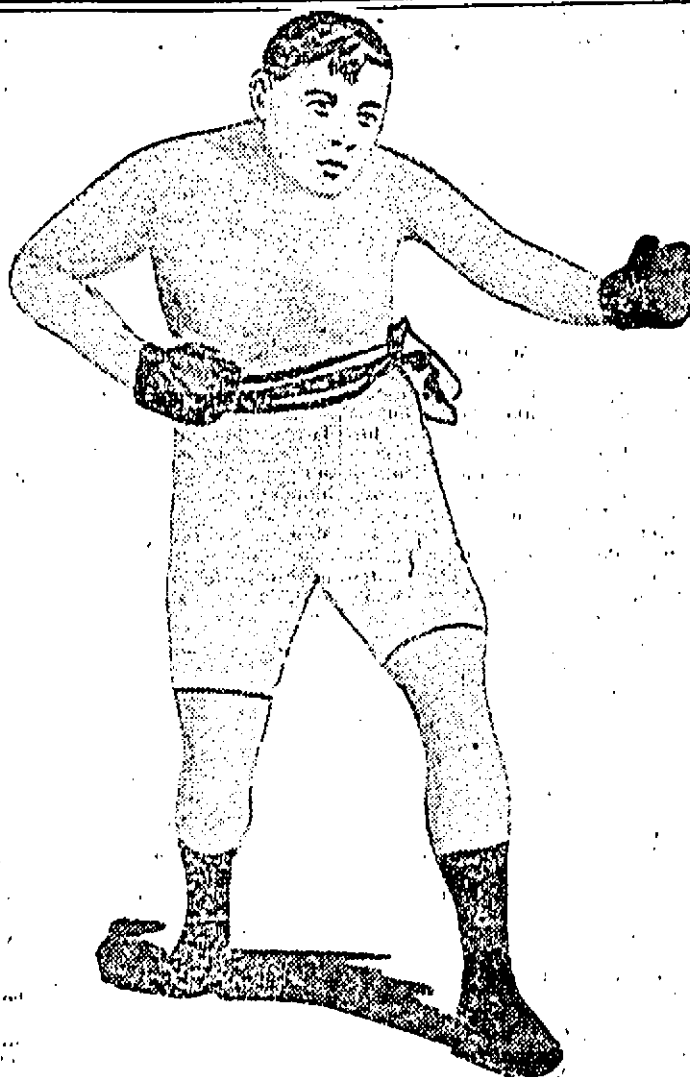

"If you want to know just how sensitive some Washington folks are, listen to the reasons some of our tenants give for canceling their leases," said a renting agent. "Here are the complaints from five families who want to move because they live on 'funeral streets.' A lot of people, it seems, are sensitive about that. There are certain streets in town—those near churches where many funerals are held and those leading to the various cemeteries—which are usually traveled by funeral parties. Houses in those streets are becoming a poor investment. There is more moving from those houses than from any others we have anything to do with, and generally the movers give as the reason for their dissatisfaction the fact that the sight of so many hearsees gets on their nerves."—Washington Star.

The Saragossans.

It is said that the queer, composite race of people that dwell upon the waterlogged bulks of the Saragossa sea, in the mid-Atlantic, have a pretty theory about death. They believe that those to whom the messenger comes when the sun is shining brightly are transported straight away to a heaven of warm fresh water only four feet in depth, in which they may wade and disport themselves to all-eternity. On the other hand, those who receive the call of death in hours of darkness must needs endure a probationary period before they can enter into the future life. The Saragossans are in addition firm believers in premonitions, omens and forebodings.

Instincts of a Woman.

A little girl who had for some time wanted a dog was taken very ill. One day when much better she told her mother of her desire and begged her to ask her grandpa to buy her one. The mother answered that grandpa did not like dogs and probably would not be willing to buy one. Then, seeing the little invalid look sadly disappointed, she said, "Well, wait till you get well, my dear, then we will see." "Oh, no," answered the child, whose few years had taught her some wisdom. "The more sick I am the more likely he will be to buy it for me."—Exchange.

THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS THROWN AWAY BY THE FARMERS

The stock food factories have taken thousands of dollars out of the pockets of the farmer by charging a big price for their goods. Any farmer can make his own stock food for three cents a pound which he pays from seven to fifteen cents for. Mr. Menig, our graduate pharmacist and chemist, is familiar with the composition of stock foods and stock remedies. One dollar buys all the drugs ground and mixed ready to use to make one hundred pounds of stock food. Mix these drugs with all cake or ground feed and you have the very best stock food for 3 cents a pound. We will gladly tell you how to save five or six dollars a hundred on stock food. Come in and have a talk with Mr. Menig on these matters and save half your money. Badger Drug Co., Milwaukee and River streets.

May 1, 1911, and $200,000 May 1, 1912, for the operation of a twelve plant at Waupun. The purpose of this bill is to employ convict labor in buildings provided and equipped by the state to manufacture twine in competition with paid labor and buildings and equipment owned by private persons. (Whether the effort is commendable or not it doubtless means the beginning of legislation for the manufacture of other things than blunder twine, farm implements and machinery, for instance, and cheap clothing, boots and shoes, etc. Closely connected with the above is a bill appropriating an additional sum of $15,000 for the equipment of the twine plant. The establishment of this industry, then, at Waupun, according to the foregoing bills, means a combined appropriation of $115,000.

Industrial Insurance.
Bill No. 12 S, was prepared by a special committee appointed by the Legislature in 1909. It removes two defenses of the employer, to wit: assumption of risk by the employee; want of ordinary care of a fellow servant. Liability as fixed for injury to an employee, as follows: Employer and employee subject to provisions of act; employee performing services incident to his employment; where injury is proximately caused by the accident and not due to willful misconduct. State, counties, cities, towns, villages and school districts are subject to the law; every person, firm and private corporation who or which has any person in service under any contract of hire, expressed or implied, oral or written, and who has elected to be governed by the provisions of the act is liable for injury as provided in the act. I cannot determine whether it is obligatory or optional with an employer to be governed by the act. However that may be, this act or subsequent acts will doubtless be of such a character as to bring all employers under its provisions.

The act provides for medical and surgical treatment, relief of various kinds, allowance for support and payments for permanent injuries. Some of these items are governed by the kind of employment and the earnings of the employee. An industrial accident board is created of which the commissioner of labor and industrial statistics is one member. The salary of each is $5,000.00. Speedy methods are provided for determination of awards and other questions of this sort by this board. The law also provides for prompt review of the action of the board by the court. Claims for compensation or awards under the act are given preference over other debts of the employer.

Provision is made whereby an award may be easily passed into the form of a judgment.

Free Text Books in Public Schools.
Bill No. 18 S (Gaylord of Milwaukee) provides that upon petition to the Board of Education or Common Council in a city asking for free text books, the motion may be submitted to the electors or in the discretion of the Board or Council such free text books may be ordered without submission to the electors.

University of Wisconsin.
Bill 26 S (Lingley) increased the annual appropriation for University extension to the sum of $150,000 beginning July 1, 1911—formerly $50,000 in 1910 and $75,000 in 1911.

For the years 1912 and 1913 the sum of $300,000 per year for each year for construction, equipment, enlargement and repair of buildings.

For experiments and investigations for the improvement of agriculture, including travelling schools of agriculture to be held in conjunction with county agricultural training schools and to provide compensation and traveling expenses of instructors for the year ending June 30, 1911, $250,000; for the year ending June 30, 1912, $300,000; and for the year ending June 30, 1913, $400,000.

The annual levy of two-sevenths of a mill on the assessed valuation of the taxable property of the state is increased to three-eighths of a mill. Taking the valuation as given for 1909 ($2,255,300,000) the tax of two-sevenths of a mill provided, in round numbers, $650,000; three-eighths of a mill will provide in round numbers, $850,000 per annum.

In addition there is a separate bill providing the sum of $100,000 for advertising the State University in the newspapers of the state.

Waterpowers and Drainage.
In bill No. 81 S a special committee on waterpowers, forestry and drainage presents a detailed plan for the control of dams, waterpowers and navigable streams, the franchisees connected therewith—provides that all franchises heretofore or hereafter granted are to be subject to control as provided in the act.

Bill No. 81 S introduced for the amending of the drainage acts in such a way as to permit drainage commissions to purchase and control rights in certain navigable waters, particularly those which are not navigable because they have been incumbered, and declared such, but because they are held to be navigable in fact because of long-standing conditions. An effort will be made to establish a public conservation commission.

Banks.
Bill 89 S (Owen) provides for the state guarantee of Wisconsin banks—"Depositors' Insurance Fund" created by assessment against state banks for the protection of depositors, existing banks, first year, 1 per cent of average deposits, new banks 3 per cent of capital stock until end of first year's business, when amount is made 1 per cent of deposits. After the first year, one-tenth of 1 per cent. In Jansville 1 per cent assessment against our state banks is about $20,000. The commissioner of insurance may remit to banks all in excess of 2 per cent of the total deposits in the state banks. Law gives large powers to the commissioner of banking. Where a state bank is in trouble the commissioner of banking decides whether to continue it and rehabilitate it or wind up its affairs.

It has authority to draw on the fund mentioned in order to make good to the depositors. Provisions to avoid excessive interest is inserted, whereby such deposits are not protected by the depositors' insurance fund.

Bill 73 S (Owen) provides for the aggregation of deposits whereby the savings deposits are to be controlled and invested in certain restricted ways, designated in the act.

Hours of Labor.
Bill 22 A (Metcalfe) provides that hours for female employment in manufacturing, mechanical, mercantile, or other industry, hotel, or restaurant limited to eight hours per day.

Children under sixteen not to be employed longer than fifty-five hours in one week, or more than ten hours a day, or more than six days a week, nor after six in the evening nor before seven in the morning—does not apply to children between the ages of twelve and sixteen carrying newspapers between 3:30 and 7:00 o'clock in the afternoon nor to children between the ages of fourteen and sixteen carrying papers between 4:30 and 7:00 in the morning—does not apply to children between fourteen and sixteen working in any store between 7 and 9 o'clock in the evening. There is also provision that this act shall not apply during the months of July or August to cannery factories.

Woman Suffrage.
Bill No. 70 A (Campier) provides for woman suffrage and a submission of the question to the people in November, 1912.

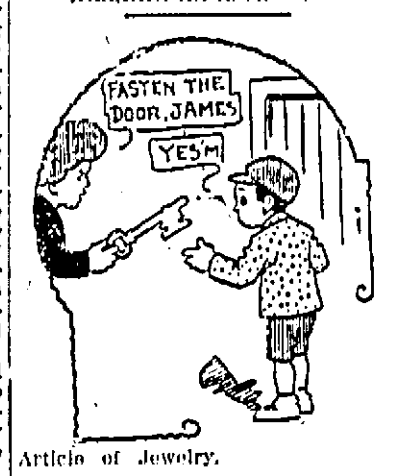

Schools.
Bill 25 A (Linscott) prohibits corporal punishment in public and private schools other than industrial schools or reformatories.

County Option.
Bill No. 81 A (Haddock) is to provide county option in Wisconsin. Like bill of 1909, says that it excepts Milwaukee Co.

"In addition to the foregoing to which I have referred there are others to numerous to mention and a multitude have been introduced in the last twenty-four hours. There will be the usual bills relating to court procedure, towns, villages and cities, and the liquor question in all its various phases. We may expect bills embodying the ideas of the initiative, referendum and recall, either in the state at large or in subordinate divisions thereof. The primary election will probably be amended so as to enable the voter to indicate his second choice.

A bill is pending to provide pensions for school teachers. Again I venture to urge upon all the necessity of a deep and active interest in the proceedings of the Legislature. There is a file of bills in the office of the County Clerk and there is also a file in our office. There may be others in the city. Those who desire are welcome to examine our files at any time.

HOME RULE ASSURED

BRITISH LIBERALS REITERATE PROMISE MADE TO IRELAND.

Premier Declares Full Justice Will Be Granted After Passage of Veto Bill.

London, Feb. 10.—During the preliminary home rule debate in the house of commons Premier Asquith reiterated his declaration that the government's first task after the "veto bill" had been disposed of would be to carry out a policy of full self-government for Ireland.

In a brief speech which drew forth vigorous cheers from the Irish and Liberal benches, he declared that every one voted at the general election in December with the full knowledge that when the lords, the great obstacle to the achievement of Liberal legislation, were cleared away the first task of the government would be to carry out a policy of full self-government for Ireland.

"We never for one moment have retracted or receded from that position," said the premier.

Mr. Asquith remarked upon the absence in the present debate of the "foolish and discreditable" election cry of British votes being sold for American gold, and maintained that the only satisfactory solution of the problem of the congestion of business in the house of commons was the creation of an Irish parliament, with an Irish executive responsible thereto, for dealing with purely Irish affairs, while maintaining the supremacy of the British parliament unimpaired.

HOWE'S WORLD FAMOUS PICTURES—TWO NIGHTS AND MATINEE, MARCH 15-16

GOULD TO RETIRE AS ROAD'S CHIEF

Will Leave Missouri Pacific as President.

TO BE CHAIRMAN OF BOARD

Kuhn-Loeb and Rockefeller Interests Will Select His Successor—Fight Dating Back to 1897 Is Ended.

New York, Feb. 14.—George J. Gould, president of the Missouri Pacific Railway company, issued a statement regarding the reported contest for control of the Missouri Pacific, in which he stated that he would retire from the presidency of the road and become chairman of the board of directors.

Differences Are Settled.
Mr. Gould in his statement said in respect to various rumors of a contest for the control of the Missouri Pacific Railway company that there is and will be no controversy between controlling interests; that it has long been his intention, known to Mr. Rockefeller and Messrs. Kuhn, Loeb & Co., to retire from the presidency of the company to allow the corporation to obtain the services of the best equipped railroad man to take his place.

The statement was in answer to the many rumors of a contest for the control of the great property, a struggle which the street believes has gone against Mr. Gould after years of effort.

Interest on Bond Issue Passed.

A coincidence that was not overlooked in Wall street was the announcement that the interest on the Texas and Pacific second income bonds would be passed, the directors having reached that decision at a meeting here.

The fight against the Gould interests has been waged more or less steadily since 1897, and his opponents have wrested one after another coveted property from George Gould's control.

The Washburn Terminal receivership in Pittsburg was a heavy blow to him and for some time not a few wise observers have been of the opinion that he was carrying a greater burden than he could endure.

Neside the millions he put into the fight to secure an entry into Pittsburg, Mr. Gould spent another fortune in building his titanic line through the mountains of Maryland to the sea.

Eastern Interests Will Vote.

The stock owned and represented by the interests referred to will be voted at the annual election for the following directors: George J. Gould, Frederick T. Gates, Cornelius Vanderbilt, E. T. Jeffery, Paul M. Warburg, of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Edwin Gould, Edgar L. Marston of Blair & Co., Klingdon Gould, R. T. Adams, representative in this country of the Deutsche bank; J. J. Stetson, W. K. Dixey, O. L. Garrison of St. Louis and a vacancy left for the president to be selected, who is to reside in St. Louis. Mr. Gould will become chairman of the board of directors.

FAIL TO FIND MISS LENEVE

More Than One Hundred Prospective Brides Come to Canada on Steamer Royal Edward.

Halifax, N. S., Feb. 16.—A thorough search of the steamer Royal Edward, which arrived here from Bristol, England, failed to disclose any trace of Miss Ethel Clara Leneve, the young woman who fled to Canada last summer with Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, the American dentist, who was later hanged in London for the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore. It had been reported that a young woman resembling Miss Leneve had boarded the steamer at Bristol, bound for the Canadian northwest to meet a prospective husband.

Although the Leneve woman was not among the passengers more than 100 prospective brides came from England, Scotland and Ireland. All of these young women were bound for the Canadian northwest in search of husbands.

MARBLE SHOTS SELF

SURGEONS REPORT NAVAL COMMANDER A SUICIDE.

Wife Finds Him Dying on Floor—Death Causes Big Sensation at Newport.

Newport, R. I., Feb. 16.—With the report of the naval surgeons late last night came the first knowledge of the fact that Commander Frank Marble of the staff of the Naval War college, who died Tuesday, was a suicide.

The inquest report was forwarded to the navy department by Capt. James Oliver, chief of the War college staff. Those who might be able to give a motive refuse to talk, and the tragedy remains a mystery.

Commander Marble went from his wife's room to the college Monday night. When Mrs. Marble awoke Tuesday morning she went to the college library and, failing to find her husband, instituted a search that ended in the discovery of the officer lying on the floor of the bathroom in a pool of blood. He was still living.

Mrs. Marble aroused the officers, and the commander was taken to the Naval hospital. Until the bullet mark was found it was believed that the commander had been suddenly stricken, and fractured his skull in falling to the floor. Four hours later he died on the operating table.

Two shots were fired from a 38-caliber revolver, one entering the right lobe of the brain and the other resting against the skull.

The suicide of Commander Marble has caused a deep sensation here. Both he and his wife were prominent in army, naval and social circles.

Little Bed-Time Tales By EDITH HAVENS

"Oh, I don't want to go to school any more," said Edwin, as his mother tucked his mother and kissed him goodnight. "I hate it so," he continued with his face all scowls.

Mrs. Proctor smiled sadly. "Why do you want to grow up and not know anything?" she asked. "You would be a very sorry boy in the days to come."

"But I can learn things without going to school," he insisted.

He finally left the house and the frown on his face was terrible to see.

Once in the schoolroom, things were even more disagreeable. They were having numbers. How he hated them. You see, he didn't give the numbers a chance. He didn't try to like them. And thus the afternoon went very slowly.

Between the closing of school and supper time, he played with the other boys and when he arrived home he found his father had already arrived. Supper came and was finished and then Mr. Proctor looking at Edwin from across the table, said: "What is this about your mother telling me you do not like to go to school?"

"But I don't," answered Edwin promptly.

Mr. Proctor looked steadily at the little chap for a moment; then rising went over to his easy chair in front of the fire.

Comfortably seated, he called: "Come here, my boy, and let us have a little talk."

In a second Edwin was perched on his father's knee.

"You say you do not like to go to school?" he began.

"Yes, sir," answered Edwin.

"Why?" asked Mr. Proctor, placing his hands on the little fellow's shoulders.

"I don't like the stupid numbers or the spelling or the grammar," answered Edwin, scowling as he spoke.

Mr. Proctor paused and then he suddenly pointed to a picture on the wall. It showed a weary looking tramp asking for something to eat at a country farmhouse door.

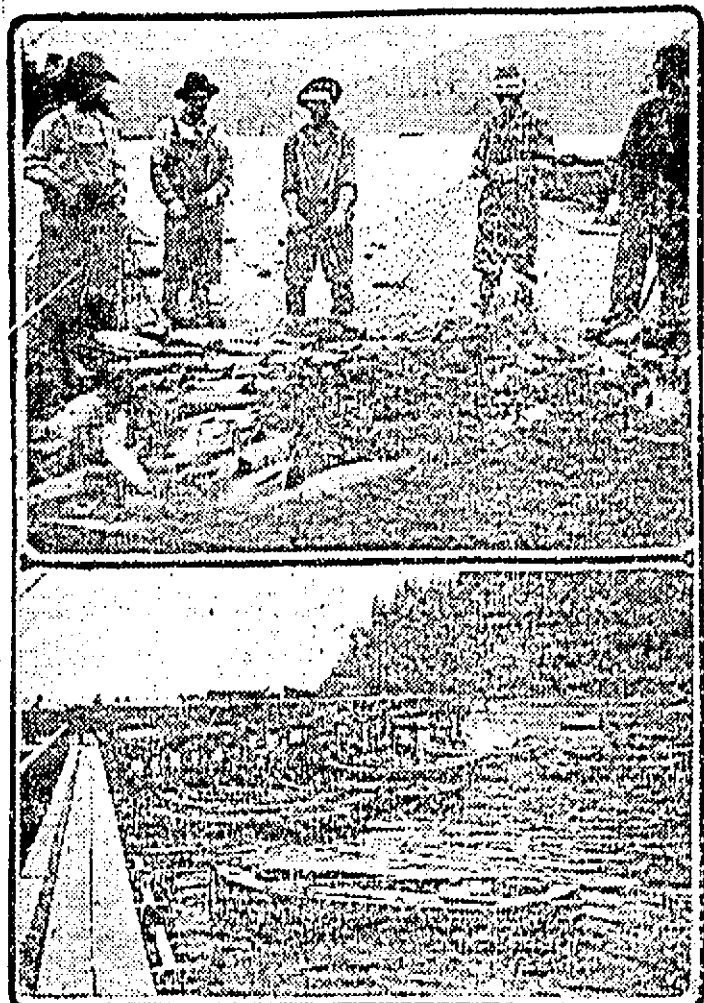

"Do you see that picture," he said.

"Do you realize that that man never went to school? Do you realize that that man did not learn enough during his school days to make enough money to live on when he grew up? He doesn't know enough and thus the poor man is forced to beg at people's doors in order to get food. Think how much he must wish that he had attended to his studies when he went to school. Think how much he must wish that he had tried to like his numbers, his spelling and his grammar!"

Mr. Proctor suddenly stopped talking, for great tears were running down Edwin's cheeks.

The little chap had learned his lesson and by trying in the classroom after that, he became one of the brightest pupils in the school.

MORE FISH FOR THE COLUMBIA RIVER.

Typical scenes among the salmon fisheries of Oregon. Below, nets and small boats ready to go out in quest of the salmon. Above, a fair catch of salmon in the Columbia river.

Portland, Ore.—One of nature's lapsons is to be corrected if man can accomplish it. A disappearing species of salmon is to be brought back to a great western river, provided the lure is attractive enough.

The Sockeye salmon and his relative, the Humpback, a similar species, have been growing more and more scarce in the Columbia river until it was feared they would become too few to fill the canneries along the stream during the winter runs, when they formerly crowded the river with fins and scales.

The passing of the Sockeye in the Columbia is one of the tragedies of nature that has not been explained. Why they should become more rare while other salmon continue to thrive in their old haunts without perceptible thinning, despite the ravages of the canneries, is unexplained. The disappearing Sockeye has caused no little concern during the past few years and canners have been casting about for ways and means to woo him back to his former spawning grounds.

The question of re-stocking the Columbia with Sockeyes has been taken up and acted upon favorably by the fisheries department and what is claimed to be the biggest salmon hatchery in the world has been built at Bonneville, Oregon, on the bank of the Columbia, to accomplish the task. The hatchery building, which has just been opened, is 55 by 230 feet and is equipped with 248 16-foot hatching troughs, having a capacity of 20,000,000 eggs. There are now 20,000,000 eggs on hand ready for hatching. Water is supplied to the hatchery from a nearby creek through a 2-inch pipe, the flow being 3,000 gallons a minute. Nursery and feeding ponds are provided sufficient for feeding 2,000,000 young fish.

Eggs of the Sockeye taken from fish caught at Voss Bay, Alaska, are being used to fill the hatching troughs at the Bonneville fish factory. Millions of Sockeye eggs have been placed there and an equal number is promised for the next four years, at the end of which time it is expected the experiment will have proved successful or otherwise.

Conditions on the Columbia are believed to be ideal for hatching the Sockeye eggs and unless the predictions of fish culturists fail, the vanishing tribe will once more inhabit the river in large numbers.

The salmon industry is a great one in the Pacific northwest and the annual harvest is worth millions. The Columbia river pack alone is estimated to be worth about $2,500,000 annually. By re-stocking the river with Sockeyes, which run at a different season of the year from the other varieties, the value of the annual catch will be much increased.

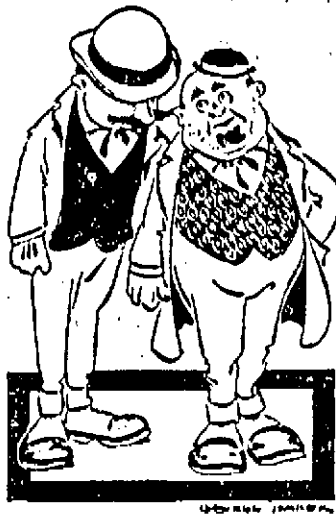

RALPH DE PALMA TELLS OF PERILS IN AUTO RACING.

To ask a racing driver to write about the perils of race driving is like asking an army officer to sit down and write an article on how the smell of gunpowder makes him sick at his stomach. Of course there are dangers connected with automobile racing, but with a driver of speed cars it is all in his day's work, and I am writing this for The Herald, not because I have any particular sentiments to voice, or "blacks" to make, but because I am informed by the editors that certain people would be interested to know what I think about racing dangers.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

PRESERVE me from the people who go out of their way and even deny their convictions for the pleasure of disagreeing with you on every possible subject.

But equally much, preserve me from the folks who swing the pendulum to the opposite extreme by being fairly false in their acquiescence.

I wonder if you know just the kind of people I mean? Let me elucidate by telling you some of their ways. These folks are so prone to agree with you and so sure they know just what you are going to say that if you pause an instant in your speech, they supply the word for you. Quite frequently it isn't the right word, but politeness forbids, of course, that you should tell them that.

They always gaze intently at you while you are talking, presumably in order to demonstrate their interest more thoroughly. As a natural result of this painfully direct gaze your eyes begin to feel as if you were trying to look into the sun, you feel yourself becoming embarrassed and start looking at the floor, the ceiling, out the window or anywhere to avoid meeting their gaze.

They almost always nod their heads frequently in approval of what you are saying. You ought to be grateful, but as a matter of fact it irritates you and makes you think of those funny little figures that used to be so popular who nodded their heads frantically at the slightest jar.

If you start to quote anything to these folks they promptly join in the quotation, or if they can't quite do that, at least chime in on the last word of every line, like a child whose mother is trying to teach in its first nursery rhyme.

Occasionally they become an enthusiastic in their acquiescence that they interrupt what you have barely begun to say by "Yes, I know," and when you have yielded the floor to them, you frequently find that they know something quite different from what you intended to say.

Now, do you recognize them?

Talking to such people makes me think of a gymnastic exercise we used to take in which we were instructed to flinch our feet and draw our arms back against the air as if we were really pulling something.

That exercise tired me much more than actually lifting heavy weights. And it seems to me that the way with talking to these falsely acquiescent folks.

It's fighting air, wrestling with a ghost, stepping up when there is no step to take.

Of course, they just do that way because they mean well, but how often does meaning well do any good unless it's preceded by thinking well?

And so far as I can see, they entirely omit that part of the program.

TO SHUN CORONATION OF SON.

London.—England has been stirred as rarely before by the announcement that Dowager Queen Alexandra, widow of King Edward, will not attend the coronation of her son, King George. This is the latest move in the battle for social supremacy being waged by Queen Mary and Queen Alexandra.

The court leaders during the reign of Edward are supporting the dowager queen and from the indications, two distinct social sets may grow out of the bitter quarrel in the royal family. Almost immediately after the death of King Edward rumors of rebellion between the two queens became current. Although these reports did not get into print in British newspapers, they were commonly known and formed the chief topic of gossip in clubs and at aristocratic gatherings.

The dowager queen occupied Buckingham palace long after the time when, according to custom, she should have left there. This and other acts have sorely tried the patience of King George and his royal consort, until an open rupture has resulted.

It was rumored that there will be two social courts in England and that Queen Alexandra—who objects to being called the queen mother on account of the implication of age in the title—aspire to outshine the wife of the reigning monarch.

Life with the idea that he can pass safely through upon twisted truth, half-truth or any other gradation of the thing honest men know as falsehood is on the wrong track and should turn back at once.

Have you ever worked with a man who, apparently honest and truthful, rarely ever gives a direct answer to questions relative to his work or who seldom gives the full truth when pressed into a corner? If you have, you know that usually he seeks to place the shortcomings for which he alone is responsible upon the shoulders of others and particularly upon those of his subordinates. If you have ever happened to be so placed that you could study a man of that type you have been able to watch the evolution of his downfall.

You remember that first day when the employer lost patience because this man would not give a direct answer to questions in regard to the business he had in hand or for which he was responsible? If you happened to be in a confidential position of the concern you remember the sadness or the anger with which his master mind later said to you: "Have you ever noticed Brown's habit of evasion? Somehow I never noticed it until today when I asked him a simple question in regard to the affairs of his department. Instead of answering me directly and honestly he was evasive. Then when I came to think of it this wasn't the first time he had done it."

Perhaps you never hear another word about Brown's evasive answers—his twisted truth—but you know that the head of the concern has lost faith in him. Every day there comes new evidence of the reluctance with which he is entrusted with information or work connected with his position.

You are not surprised, therefore, when one day your employer and his wife say to you: "I've got to let Brown go. I have lost faith in him and no matter how well he may do his work I shall always feel that he is not playing square with me. I'm sorry. I liked the fellow and wanted to see him succeed and I wanted to keep him with us. I thought he was a real asset to the business until I discovered that he never met my questions with straightforward answers."

You know then the power of twisted truth.

The KITCHEN GABINET

AN EFFECT is achieved in your kitchen as it is attained by little effort and simple means.

Diet cures more than the doctor.

Lenten Dishes.

During the Lenten season the egg is much used as food. As a garnish for green salads they have no equal.

Hard-cooked egg and lettuce, with dressing, makes a most acceptable salad. Hard-cooked eggs with chopped cabbage with sardines, with parsley, potato and capers, egg with celery, egg and cream cheese on lettuce. In fact almost any combination of vegetable is good with eggs.

A very nice breakfast dish is made as follows: Cut several hard-cooked eggs lengthwise and add them to a thick white sauce poured over buttered toast.

Eggs a la Livingstone.—Heat four eggs slightly, add one-half cup of stewed tomatoes, salt and paprika. Melt two tablespoons of butter in an omelet pan, add the seasoned eggs and cook like scrambled eggs. Spread slices of buttered toast with chopped hard-boiled, pour over the eggs and serve with half a cup of strained tomatoes added to the eggs. Eggs form a valuable part of salad dressings.

English Salad Dressing.—Prepare a regular mayonnaise, to which add the yolks of two hard-cooked eggs rubbed smooth and two-thirds as much cream as oil.

Sour Cream Salad Dressing.—Take one cup of thick sour cream, not too old, one teaspoonful of salt, the juice of half a lemon, two tablespoonsful of vinegar, a dash of cayenne, a teaspoonful of sugar. Beat all together until well blended.

East Indian Dressing.—Two hard-cooked egg yolks rubbed smooth in eight tablespoonsful of oil; add a teaspoonful of curry powder and two tablespoonsful of tarragon vinegar.

Cream Dressing.—Mix a half tablespoonful of salt, a fourth of a tablespoonful of mustard, three-fourths of a tablespoonful of sugar, one egg slightly beaten, two and a half tablespoonsful of melted butter, three-fourths of a cup of cream; add one-fourth of a cup of vinegar slowly. Cook over water until thick. Strain and cool.

MAKE CLOSET SPACE

ARRANGEMENT THAT GREATLY INCREASES CAPACITY.

Hangers That Can Be Lifted Up to the Ceiling Will Be Found of Much Value—Use for Old-Fashioned Secretary.

Help for dwellers in apartments whose closet room is congested comes in hangers that can be poked up to the ceiling. Therefore that space between the top and the line of hooks which hitherto has been wasted becomes of value by means of one or two rods stretched across about four inches below the ceiling. The value of this arrangement is not only in use of space that has been idle, but that long dresses may be hoisted so high that they are not in the way when entering the closet.

Whether one or two rods may be used in this fashion depends upon the depth of the closet. There must, however, be space enough to permit all garments being placed on coat hangers.

The racks which are to be added are those ordinarily used, and to make the handling of garments placed so high easy there is a long stick, with a hook at the end, which may be used to lift clothes down and put them back without reaching.

The rods should be put across the closet, from end to end, but arrangement depend, somewhat upon the shape of the closet.

Needless to add such garments as are added should be those not worn every day, and the stick for taking them down should be kept in the closet.

A woman who has lived for many years in an apartment finds an old-fashioned secretary a useful piece of furniture, because of the number of different articles it will hold. The lower section is always either drawers or a cupboard, and underclothes or other garments may be tucked away in such manner that they may be easily taken out. The top always has doors and shelves. If the doors are of glass they can be backed by plain or figured silk, pulled on rods. In the hidden space thus arranged no end of articles, large and small, may be placed.

An old-fashioned bookcase, which begins at the floor, and is about five feet high, may be converted into a clothes closet.

The shelves may be removed and hooks put around the top, inside, so coats and skirts of any kind may be hung.

When serving a pineapple short, add a spoonful of maraschino to each portion after putting it into the glass cups.

Boil the milk and the liquor of the oysters separately. Put them together boiling hot and the milk will not curdle.—Suburban Life.

Rich fruit cake has done service in an emergency as pudding and decolored the guests completely. The cake was steamed, cut in slices and served hot, with a rich plum pudding sauce.

If the cake frosting is too thin, put it in the sun, which will draw the water from the frosting; then put the frosting on the cake, set the cake in a hot oven for just a minute, and the frosting will harden.

When baking custards grate some chocolate over the top just before putting them into the oven. Those who like chocolate will find a delightfully brown and "crusty" crust over the custard when done, while the mass beneath will remain a clear gold color.

LANDSLIDES AND AVALANCHES.

RECENT cable messages from across the sea tell of immense avalanches from the Alps in the province of Verone. Two snowslides estimated at 500,000 cubic feet have obstructed the roadway, many homes have been isolated, and in one valley only chimney tops are to be seen where houses stand. At Castro Gallaides, Spain, forty persons were killed and others injured by a sudden landslide.

While much of the material in such catastrophes is snow and ice, yet its mass moves with such force that it also carries away much earth and rock, and thus the face of nature in such districts is being constantly changed, mountains are being worn down and valleys are filling up.

In every such region as that of the Alps there are glaciers, rivers of solid ice, caused by the accumulation of snow and ice in the higher mountain regions and their constant pressing downward and onward in obedience to the law of gravitation. While glacers move very slowly, they possess almost irresistible power, breaking off huge pieces of rock, carrying them long distances, and grinding smaller pieces into fine soil afterward, to be deposited in entirely new locations.

From all this it is apparent that by steady though slow process the mountains are wearing away—indeed, that they have already done so on a large scale to reach their present shape—and that the valleys and plains and even the ocean itself are filling up.

Strange changes are creeping over our great lakes also, though some of them may prove only temporary, for 610,000,000 gallons of water are said to have disappeared from these inland seas during last December, and the waters of Lake Superior have lowered nearly one-fifth of a foot in ten years. In December the four other lakes were from forty-seven one-hundredths to four-fifths of a foot below the average.

SUNNY MONDAY

SUNNY MONDAY Laundry Soap contains a wonderful dirt-starter which saves half the rubbing. It will double the life of your clothes. Its real virtues may not be apparent the first time you use it. You have perhaps been washing your clothes with a heavily-resined soap, and it will take some time for Sunny Monday to undo what the resin soap has done. But after three or four washings you will notice a decided difference in the whiteness of your clothes.

Sunny Monday will not shrink your flannels.

Sunny Monday will not make your woollens harsh and "netley."

Sunny Monday will not fade your colored goods.
